

I support RM-10352 because I consider true separation of wideband modes from narrow band modes as very desirable now. I also think that this will become a practical necessity within a short time if the present narrow modes are to be able to survive. This action would also accommodate development and use of future digital modes which can be very valuable by employing combinations of low-power, rapid communication, and narrow bandwidths. I consider it desirable to establish a plan of separation which is consistent with the other similar amateur service bands.
